Ida Bay Railway Preservation Society

___ Why we need your help and Membership _____

Ida Bay Railway is owned by the people of Tasmania and needs your help to retain its important heritage value and keep providing a great experience for community and visitors alike.

Help us conserve the Ida Bay Railway by becoming a member of the Ida Bay Railway Preservation Society.

This group seeks out and records the history and stories of Tasmania's Far South, the Ida Bay Railway and its remarkable settings - as well as the people and communities that lived and worked around the Railway. Members also assist with conservation and operation of the historic Railway, its infrastructure, venerable rolling stock and buildings - as well as telling the Railway's many stories to visitors. We need to remind the government and community of the many challenges facing the Railway's conservation and continued operation.

The group keeps in touch by mail, e-mail or phone as suits you and has meetings every couple of months to plan what's to happen. Apart from tasks focusing on the operation and conservation of the Railway, the group also undertakes activities and excursions to enjoy and explore the Railway's connections to the region, other rail networks and Tasmanian history. Membership costs just $25:00 per annum (1st September – 31st August the following year) There are many ways you can become involved – or simply help by being a Member of the Railway's preservation group – and passing the word around about this great little Railway.

Your contact details remain confidential and will only be used to contact you about the group's activities.
